Heritage and purpose

The most sustainable way of creating workspace is to use what already exists and City Tower has stood the test of time.

In 1959, architects Couell Matthews and Partners unveiled their radical plans for the creation of an exciting new space. Bold and unorthodox at the time, the scheme comprised three towers which sat atop a podium that ran the entire length of Parker Street.

The man chosen to make it all happen was Bernard Sunley, one of the most successful property developers to come out of the 1950's building boom. The three towers, Bernard House, Sunley House and Piccadilly Hotel were completed and in 1965, Piccadilly Plaza officially opened its doors. (Legend has it that it was a non-negotiable condition of Sunley's taking the job that the towers would bear his name.)

Ahead of the curve

Building styles dance in and out of fashion, often falling victim to the bulldozer, but for nearly 60 years, City Tower has stood tall and remains a cherished landmark of Manchester's ever-evolving skyline.

As you make it your home, you'll be welcomed into a thriving, vibrant community where you can exchange ideas, push boundaries and embrace a future of unfettered possibilities. Feel good about where you work, knowing you're making your mark on the world.

At the centre of it all

City Tower is strategically convenient. Whatever you need, the building is both a one-stop destination and a gateway to Manchester. Its ultra-accessible location is handy for the metro, free shuttle bus, rail, and Manchester Airport. And, with coffee shops, food outlets, gym and Metro stores all within its walls, you can find everything essential for your daily life with ease.

The building's central location also connects you to the vibrant soul of Manchester, where every street corner is bursting with life and character.

A THRIVING, VIBING COMMUNITY

Everything for effortless daily life

Alongside its great urban surroundings, City Tower nurtures within to enrich the everyday. Inside its walls, you'll find everything essential for effortless daily life. A brilliant retail scene awaits you on the ground floor, with an eclectic ensemble of shops and restaurants to meet your every need.

Start your day the right way – with freshly-brewed coffee, of course.

< Piccadilly Gardens

The on-site Starbucks is right there waiting for you as you walk through the entrance.

If you're looking for a light bite when lunchtime rolls around, Tesco Express, Nudo Sushi Box and Tegtat have got you covered. Brimming with meal deals, snacks and drinks, you can feel energised for the rest of your day.

Wondering where to go for something special? Try Namii, the Vietnamese restaurant and cocktail bar with menus inspired by the culture's mythology and folklore. This hotspot has quickly emerged as a force to be reckoned with in Manchester's hospitality scene, collecting numerous award nominations.

The main central foyer hosts a pop-up shed too – a charming retail space that rotates its lineup of small businesses every one to two weeks. Many independent treasures have been known to grace the shed, from florists adorned with colourful blooms, to artisan confectioners, to local jewellers. It proudly embraces Mancunian entrepreneurship, ensuring that each visit brings an exciting array of new experiences for our esteemed residents to enjoy.

Ducie Street

Just a short walk away is Ducie Street Warehouse, a fashionable hotspot that's kept its original industrial charm. You'll find plenty to love here, from the sophisticated bar and restaurant to the great outdoor terrace, and even a mini cinema that shows cult classics. Satisfy your sweet cravings with a visit to Gooey, its famous next door neighbour that serves up delicious doughnuts and cookies. And if you or your clients need to stay in town overnight, you can book one of its many stylish rooms.

^ Ducie Street warehouse

Piccadilly Gardens

City Tower's doorstep opens up to Piccadilly Gardens, a bustling area that has recently undergone a huge transformation. It now boasts a shiny new turf and a festival pop-up area with bars and food stalls, making it an ideal spot for lunch or drinks.

St Peter's Square

St Peter's Square is a five-minute stroll from the building and is steeped in history and culture. Overlooking this lively urban corner is the town hall — a proud symbol of Manchester's illustrious heritage. This has served as the backdrop for countless film and TV favourites, including Peaky Blinders and The Iron Lady with Meryl Streep. There's also the Manchester Art Gallery and the Central Library, two renowned gems that capture the essence of the city's creative spirit. When it's time to eat, Wagamama or the Anthologist are perfect spots for a quick bite.

Let's work well together

City Tower honours your work-life balance. That's why we've created an inclusive community where individuals feel supported, both professionally and personally. We care about the camaraderie within our walls, and we're proud to provide more than just a workspace. Our holistic approach to wellbeing extends beyond office hours, and we warmly welcome everyone in our building to our many activities and events.

More than just a workspace

It's what we do best

The management strategy of City Tower underpins the vision and values of Schroders, with an emphasis on customer care. At City Tower, the occupier is central to all that we do and we are keen to ensure we remain in close contact with you to ensure the building is servicing all of your needs.

All services sourced to operate the building are done so in an ethical and sustainable manner to promote both environmental and social values.

Community is at the heart of City Tower and a cohesive and interactive programme of occupier events is offered at the building, underpinning the values above and fostering a sense of social and business collaboration between our tenants.

We want City Tower to be an engaging, stimulating environment in which to work and take pride in the fact that operations and an operating ethos help support the wider local community.

"We're always here to help, no matter how big or small"
